Museum announces exhibits preparator appointment

Steve Hansen, director of the Sioux City Public Museum, announces the appointment of Matt Anderson as exhibits preparator. Anderson was previously the Museum's archival records clerk.

Anderson has a Bachelor of Science degree in history and political science from Morningside College and a Master of Arts degree in public history from St. Cloud State University (Minnesota). He completed an internship in the Sioux City Economic Development Department and worked as a graduate assistant for the Central Minnesota History Center on the campus of St. Cloud State University before starting a paid internship at the Pearl Street Research Center in June 2001.

As exhibits preparator, Anderson researches, designs and maintains the Museum's exhibits and coordinates traveling exhibitions. Anderson has curated several exhibits including DINO-mite Discoveries: Draco & Friends which is on display through March 22 at the Sioux City Public Museum.
